

Recommended Flora for Revegetation Around Darebin Creek

Choosing the proper species to revegetate around the Darebin Creek Catchment is an important facet of planning in the area. It is preferred that revegetation be of native species, and suit the character of the specific area. Revegetation should take place when any flora is removed from a site, or when it is recommended that buildings be screened from the park area. The following is a list of species recommended by the DCMC for planting in the Darebin Creek Catchment. Specific mention is given to the suitability of plants for screening purposes.
